

- in the 21st century. Environment 1999; 41:8-18.
10. Krimsky, F., Wrubel, R.P. Agricultural biotechnology and the Environment. Univ.of Illinois Press, City Il 1996.
 11. Pirisi, A. Genetically engineered foods debate sows seeds of discontent. Lancet 1998; 352:382.
 12. Anonymous. Genetically Modified Food UK and World News. 2000.
 13. Gaskell, G., Bauer, M.W., Durant, J., Allum, N.C. Worlds apart? The reception of genetically modified foods in Europe and the U.S. Science. 1999; 285:384-387.
 14. Marwick, C. Genetically modified crops feed ongoing controversy. JAMA. 2000; 283:188-190.
 15. Godfrey, J. Do genetically modified foods affect human health? Lancet 2000; 355:414.
 16. Worth, J. Reports on a national conference organised by the British Society for Allergy and Environmental and Nutritional Medicine. 5 November 1999; London.
 17. Cummins, R. Hazards of genetically engineered foods and crops: why we need a global moratorium. Bio-Democracy and Organic Consumers Association. 2000 .
 18. Conner, A.J. and Jacobs, J.M.E. Genetic engineering of crops as potential source of genetic hazard in the human diet. Mutation Res. 1999; 443:223-234.
 19. Anonymous. Welcome to genetic food alert. 2000
 20. Gavaghan, H. Britain struggles to turn anti-GM tide. Science. 1999; 284:1442-1444.